A Special Training on Storytelling

Sat, Jan 20 | 2:00-6:00 pm | Chapel | $15 per person
Registration + Info at bit.ly/Storytelling2018

Two reasons why you should participate in the storytelling workshop:

1. We all can improve how we tell stories, both in general and from the Bible. We can use stories to encourage people in a time of need, to share Good News with others when the Holy Spirit opens a door, to illustrate a truth we are explaining using a story from the Bible, to be more efficient in sharing the Bible in Sunday School, in Bible studies, and with our own children, grandchildren, and even adult relatives.

We Did It Truro! Thank You for Your Generosity in 2017

by Bob Tate

December was an amazing month! But first, let me say a huge THANK YOU for all your year-end gifts to Truro so we could end the year well financially. We didn't just make our monthly and yearly goals for giving—we exceeded them! Thanks to you, we are ready to continue to engage in wonderful ministry in 2018 with confidence. Here are some highlights from December: Carols by Glowstick was yet again our largest ever—we had so many folks from outside the church come worship with us. We also had the largest Christmas Eve services in several years. And oh my, so many of you faithfully volunteered for the many activities supporting Christmas at Truro—well done, everyone! We had some wonderful Christmas ministry celebrations as well for our beloved Seniors, Youth, Young Adults, and TIPS, including a special tree trimming with over 40 internationals participating! Alpha held its celebration dinner at the Auld Shebeen, a fantastic time of fun and fellowship. Matt and Kate Rogers packed the chapel for our biggest-yet First Sunday concert. And finally, we were blessed to welcome Truro's two newest deacons, Rev. Michael King and Rev. Hannah King! What a great year we're expecting in 2018!

Dan March, Senior Warden, adds: On behalf of the Truro vestry, let me add our sincere thanks and appreciation for your marvelous support to Truro's 2018 Stewardship Campaign! To God be the glory as we start our new year at Truro!

WORSHIP + ARTS

Jamie Is Going on Sabbatical

by Tory Baucum

Twenty years ago this month, as a teenage boy at a small Episcopal church in the Florida panhandle, Jamie Brown began leading worship weekly on Sundays. Since that time, with very few breaks, he has been running the race of ministry. After two decades, the time has arrived for him to take a sabbatical, this February to May, while also taking a full semester of seminary classes to move him significantly closer to finishing his master's degree. I, along with the vestry, have encouraged him to do this. We are grateful to have a wonderful worship and arts staff and volunteer team in place who will continue to lead our vibrant corporate worship while Jamie is away.

Please pray for Jamie, Catherine, and their girls as they temporarily relocate to Central Florida. Jamie will be studying at Reformed Theological Seminary's Orlando campus during part of the week, and spending the rest of the time intentionally with his family—resting, reconnecting, and recharging (and making regular trips to the beach). He'll be back on Sunday, June 3, ready to keep running the race with us here at Truro.
