Like to sing? Join our summer choir. Jump in any Sunday. Rehearsals are in the choir room at 8:00 am and 10:40 am for our two respective services.

Thanks again for joining us today.

"A Meal with Jesus": Look for the Stranger

There is a new card in your pews. This card is part of our "Meals with Jesus" season. So take a card! Begin thinking about the "stranger" in your midst. Who is an unknown face in your neighborhood? Who is a new face in church? Put their name down to invite them to a meal.

Perhaps you feel more like the stranger. If you are new to Truro, fill out your name in the tear-off portion of the card along the bottom. When you put it in the offering plate, we will connect you with someone who is hosting a meal near you.

There is more information yet to come. But for now, let us remember that we are all strangers invited to Jesus' table. For this reason, hosting, inviting, and attending are all images of the Gospel, images of the eternal meal we share with Jesus.

Youth Alpha

by Mike Seawright

Tue(s), starting Jun 28 | 12:00 pm | Upper Room

Alarming statistics about church attendance for young people are not hard to find. Many teenagers and young adults are dropping out of church, and not all will return. But there are three things that churches can do to help faith "stick" for young people and to introduce teens who are not yet Christians to Jesus.

On June 28, we're launching a Youth Alpha Course, where we will do all three of those things around lunch tables.

A Time of Transition

by Matt Hemsley

Ever since I felt called to leave video production and work in the church, I have wanted to develop mission shaped church, church that is able to engage the culture where it is.

We know at least two things about the task of creating mission shaped church: 1. the need is urgent as an entire generation (and culture) drifts away from the church, and 2. there is probably not just one "shape" of church that can reverse that tide in every context or for all people. This means some of us will be called to experiment and try to develop local "fresh expressions" of church. Indeed, Kim and I originally came to Washington, DC with the aim of planting, something we talked about with Tory right from the start. And there comes a moment when we have to say to ourselves, "If not now, then when?"

That "now" has arrived for Kim and me. And in this next season of our ministry, we are exploring the possibility of developing a Fresh Expression congregation of Truro in a new location. Unless God directs otherwise, we are praying about somewhere closer to where we live, between West Falls Church and the Merrifield/Mosaic district, an area undergoing significant change and population migration, often markers of opportunity for the church (and it's not too far from Truro).

But this is not goodbye! We are not leaving, but changing our role. I will continue to serve as an adjunct Priest at Truro and hope to work with Tory and Canon Andrew White on the proposed School of Reconciliation (together with St Paul's Theological Centre), whilst developing a Fresh Expression of church.

This is an uncertain and challenging time for us as a family. And we want to stay as connected and engaged with our Truro family as possible. We have learned so much during our time here (and still have a lot to learn from you). It has been a time of real growth for us, and we're tremendously grateful for that. You have cared for and loved us as a family unbelievably well, and we remain committed to Truro's vision of "Learning to love like God!" And as we move forward, we covet your continuing prayers, support, engagement and love in all we do!

Happy Father's Day by Matt Hemsley

There's a wonderful video Mike Seawright, our Director of Family Ministries, shared with me recently called, "Go Ask Dad." It's actually a TV Commercial for Gillette, but it says something quite profound about fatherhood at a time when, "94% of teenagers ask the internet for advice before their dads." We live in a world of abundant information and cheap advice on "how to get the most out of life." But, at the same time, it is an increasingly depersonalized and anonymous world and fatherless (could there be a link there?). But when Jesus taught us to pray, he taught us to pray to our Abba, to our Daddy, our intimate and loving Father in Heaven. Father. Daddy. Abba. I wonder what those words mean to you, and whether they elicit positive, mixed or negative feelings. I never really experienced an intimate relationship with my own father. As a father now myself, I don't have an ideal or model of what fatherhood should be like. But one thing I can do. I want my fatherhood to be personal. I want my children to know me, and for them to trust that I know them and that they can always just, "Go Ask Dad!" Isn't that the kind of relationship Jesus invites into with our heavenly Father? Youth Alpha

We'll provide a safe space for young people to wrestle with big questions and to encounter Jesus. We'll nurture small groups where lifelong friendships can be formed and strengthened. And we'll connect teens with fantastic adult small group leaders who will walk with them the whole time.

Please be praying for Youth Alpha. And invite any teenagers you might know to come on the course. It's free, the food will be great, friendships will be formed, and lives will be changed. i Find out more at truroanglican.com/youth or email Wes Buckley, wbuckley@truroanglican.com.
