Meals as Acting Out Jesus' Kingdom by Matthew Hemsely

As we explore how meals could become a significant part of Truro mission to impact our friends, colleagues and neighbors, I have found myself asking a question. You see, I get that meals are great way to show hospitality to strangers, both inside and outside the church, and to build 'sticky' relationships...but how is Jesus actually present at those meals? How are 'Meals with Jesus' any different to any other meal we eat? Perhaps that's a little like asking the question of how Jesus is actually present in Holy Communion! Is it simply that Jesus is always present among His gathered people. Or by the sovereign work of the Holy Spirit? Or the public proclamation of God's word, the scriptures and the Gospel. Or is there something about hospitality itself that reveals Jesus? I think all that is true. But I wonder if Jesus' presence might also be made real in another way . . . in the character of the meals we throw.

Youth Alpha

by Mike Seawright

Tue(s), starting Jun 28 | 12:00 pm | Upper Room

Youth Alpha Starts This Week!

Some teens are working this summer, and some are desperately looking for something to do. Either way, fit Tuesdays at lunchtime into your schedule. At Youth Alpha, you can get lunch (CHICK FIL-A THIS WEEK!), you can watch short videos on some aspect of Christianity (they are serious and goofy combined), and you can talk about what you think in small groups. Alpha is fantastic for kids who are not Christians, as well as for church kids. No one will try to make you believe anything or do anything—Alpha really is a place that you can say what you think.

YOUTH

Support the Youth Ministry by Purchasing The Nicene Creed: Illustrated and Instructed for Kids

The Rev. Joey Fitzgerald, former Truro priest and Family Ministry Director, has written the first-ever book to teach children about The Nicene Creed. Joey's book helps parents, grandparents, and teachers engage 5 to 12 year olds in the marvelous light of God's love for them through illustrations and the ancient words of The Creed. His lucid commentary helps children understand what we affirm by reciting the Creed, and why each of its affirmations is important to the Christian faith. Joey's artwork introduces children and adults to an ancient Christian style by evoking, but not imitating, the beautiful visual art of iconography. Joey wrote and illustrated this book for his own children and children everywhere.

i Purchase your copy today from the Family Ministry office for $15; proceeds benefit Youth Ministry.

Don't Leave Church Hungry

The Youth Ministry will be selling donuts and other baked goods to raise money for various youth activities this summer. Please stop by the Family Ministry table before or after church and purchase something yummy!

Learn to Bake Bread with Meghan Graham and Other Amazing Things You Could be Doing This Summer!

by Wes Buckley

Genesis Arts Camp: Mon - Fri, Aug 15 - 19

Of all the awesome things happening this summer, I am really excited for Genesis, especially the afternoon session! The camp from 1 - 5 each afternoon is for upcoming 6th -10th graders who want to learn some different artistic skills like drawing, photography, acting, singing, and playing instruments. Students can also learn some culinary arts with Meghan Graham! Even if you are not an arts person (like me), you can still learn some amazing awesome skills, and, of course, have a ton of fun doing it!

i For more details, visit truroanglican.com/genesis.

Youth Alpha CONTINUED FROM PAGE 2

You can ask anything and no one will think you are stupid—the more questions, the better! And when we're done, we'll do something fun every week (can anyone say slip and slide? Ice cream? Frisbee?). So come and bring friends this Tuesday at noon—we want everybody to be there!

Meals as Acting CONTINUED FROM PAGE 2

Because the meals that Jesus attended were both ordinary and extraordinary. They were ordinary in following the expected patterns of family life and middle-eastern hospitality. But they were also extraordinary in a number of ways: the guest list (who was invited, often "sinners"); how Jesus behaved and sometimes deliberately subverted social status and norms (think of his shocking acceptance of Mary Magdalene's act of public intimacy). Meals with Jesus in the Gospel were little enacted revelations of His upside-down (or right-way-up) Kingdom! How might our "Meals with Jesus" be both simple, familiar and ordinary . . . but also extraordinary, risky, Kingdom revealing events?

WORSHIP

Let The People Sing!

You may have noticed that we are making a consistent effort this summer of inviting our Truro family to sing in the choir on Sunday mornings. Why are we making such a big deal about this? For two reasons.

First, our choir exists as a community of worshippers: Young and old, trained and untrained, experienced and inexperienced. There is a place in this community for singers of all backgrounds, even those who have never sung in a choir before. If you love to sing, we would love to have your gifts contributing to this ministry. Really!

Second, our choir exists as a community of worship leaders. Psalm 34:3 says "Oh magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together!" Those of us up front are not there to perform or impress. We're there to invite. So, if you have a love for Jesus, a heart for worship, and a desire to invite others to magnify the Lord with you, then please join us on Sunday mornings. We'll make you feel right at home.

MISSIONS
